CRIME OF A WIFE AND MOTHER.

Discovery of a Clue to an Organized Gang of Burglars in the State-Waterworks Downed-Nebraska Politics.

Charged With Killing Her Husband. Tobias, Neb., July 9 .- Special to The BEE. |-News reached here last night of the death last Saturday, under somewhat peculiar circumstances, of Bernard Krug, a farmer sixty five years of age, who lived bight miles southwest of this place. He was found dead in his corn field by his little daughter who went to take him a drink of water. His wife had been in the field with him a short time before and suspicion points to her as having murdered him. The er's jury found evidence of a struggle field and returned a verdict to the effect that the old man came to his death by foul means Mrs. Krug was arrested and taken to Oniowa where she will have a hearing. It is said their domestic relations have been anything but happy for a long time.

An Important Clue. HASTINGS, Neb., July 9.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—The chance arrest of a suspicious character here yesterday is likely to lead to the discovery of a gang of burglars systematically operating in the state. An unknown man was observed to enter a building and secrete a valise which the police found to contain a large number of knives, jewelry, etc., evidently stolen plunder. The strange when apprehended strongly resisted search Shipping bills in his possession showed that E. A. Gibbs had recently forwarded goods to Joe Brown, St. Paul, Minn., from Exeter, Sutton and other towns. The supposed burg lar was sent to jail thirty days. Parties from the places named since arrived identify the goods as their stolen property. Evidence is accumulating leading to the detection of a gang of well organized robbers.

In company with George Lawson, cashier of the First National bank, he swam across the creek and was swimming back. In the middle of the creek Lawson, who was ahead, turned around to speak to Palmer, only to see him throw his bands up in the air and sink for the last time. The body was recovered during the night. Dr. Palmer leaves a young wife. His brother resides in Omaha. He has resided in Ashland for about one year, and had many warm friends here.

MILLER'S STRANGE HISTORY. The Woman Who For Years Masquer · aded as a Man.

Slovx Cirv, Ia., July 9.-[Special Tele gram to THE BEE.]-Charles Miller, the convict who has been discovered at the Fort Madison penitentiary to be a woman, was Madison penitentiary to be a woman, was sent up from this city for horse stealing, and has a strange history. Miller was known in this vicinity for over five years, and there never was a suspicion that she was not a man. She dressed in man's garb, did a man's work, and associated with men. The strangest part of it is that under the name of Charles Miller she lived for three years as the husband of a woman who is still in this city. She supported this woman by doing a man's work on a farm and in a barber shop. She even adopted a child, who is still living with Miller's alleged wife. The crime for which Miller was sentenced was the stealing of a team from a livery stable here. She of a team from a livery stable here. She was confined in jail with male prisoners for weeks, but her sex was neither discovered nor suspected. Absolutely nothing is known of Miller's antocedents, and the alleged wife within a few days ago.

THE BARRETT CASE. Their Counsel Confident of Securing a

New Trial. MINNEAPOLIS, July 9.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—To-morrow W. W. Erwin will make his plea in the supreme court for a stay of proceedings in the case of the Barrett boys. The day set for the execution is the 18th of July-next Friday. There is, however, but small prospect that the execu-tion will come off at that time. Both Sheriff Swenson and the Barrett boys are proceeding on the understanding that the day of the execution will be postponed. Assistant County Attorney Jamison said to-day that County Attorney Jamison said to-day that the attorney general, who has charge of the case in the supreme court, would simply enter a formal objection to the stay and not make any fight against it. Mr. Ewin has 125 masignments of error and if any one of these is decided in his favor he will secure a new trial. It is said that he is almost certain of a new trial in the case of Tim, but is not sure of Pote. The prosecuting attorneys are new trial in the case of Tim, but of Pete. Mr. Dingley of Maine offered an amendment fixing the duty on sugar not above No. 13 Dutch standard, and testing not above 75 degrees, at seventy hundredths of a cent per pound, with an additional duty of two-hundredths of a cent per pound for each additional degree or fraction of a degree.

Mr. Bayne of Pennsylvania hoped that Mr. Dingley's proposition would prove acceptable to every republican and democrat on the floor. The Mills bill proposed 68 per cent, and Mr. Dingley's amendment proposed 41 per cent. The amendment would reduce the revenue $29,030,000. Mr. Reed inquired if the chairman of the committee would not explain the reason why the change had been made. Mr. Mills retorted by inquiring why it was that when in former congresses the commit-tee had sought to make a change the gentleman had stood by this great cheat. Mr. Cannon inquired whether two wrongs ande a right.

Mr. Mills wanted to know why it was that the gentleman had stood by Havemeyer and the sugar trust and all other trusts. He had even refused in former congresses to accord consideration to a measure affecting the revenue, and consequently the trust. Mr. Reed said that here was a direct charge made against the committee; that charge unde against the committee; that after an interview with Havemeyer they had the sugar schedule changed in the interest of the most prominent of these trusts which they denounced so much, and explained the reason that induced the change, and the chairman of the committee gives the house general declaration of how good he is and how bad republicans are. It seemed that the bill had been made up for the purpose of affecting the success of certain democrats.

Mr. Cannon's amendment was rejected.

Mr. Cannon's amendment was rejected. Mr. Weber of New York offered an amend ment providing that no drawback shall be allowed on sugar exported from the United States. He charged that the amended bill was in the interest of the sugar trust of the country. Mr. Weber's amendment being rejected, he offered another requiring drawbacks to be paid only upon polariscopic tests, saying that this was the last resort of the sugar trust, and the gentleman on the other side had now an opportunity to free theselves from suspicion, which would become a certainty if they voted down his negrocities.

On motion of Mr. Coburn Mr. McConnell The first order of business after roil call was the election of permanent officers. Mr. Morrison put in nomination Mr. H. T. Clarke for re-election o the position of president of the board.

Mr. McConnell said, owing to a conflict of the school law with itself, the election of officers about to be made was really only temporary, as it would have to ratified at the next meeting.

Charley Wehrer, a new member, jumped up and condemned such a repetition of work, branding it as "no good," and saying that only one election was necessary and that should be held at the next meeting. He therefore moved that the board adjourn. No attention was paid to either Wehrer's protest or motion, a motion was made by of the members that the election of Clarke be made unanimous and that the sec-retary be instructed to cast all the ballots in his favor. The motion was carried without a dissenting vote. Mr. Clarke then took the

Mr. Felton put Mr. McConnell in nomination for vice president and a motion was offered that his election be made unanimous and instructing the secretary to cast the ballot in his favor. Mr. Rees, a new member, objected to this, saying he was quite capable of casting his own vote and did not care to have the secreown vote and did not care to have the sceretary exercise his right of franchise for him.

It was therefore decided to vote for vice president by ballot. The first vote resulted:
McConnell, 11; Saville, 2; Mr. McConnell was therefore declared elected. On motion his election was made unanimous.

When nominations for the position of secretary were declared in order, Mr. McConnell put in nomination Mr. J. B. Piper, who has held that position for the past year. Mr.
McConnell spoke of him as a capable and worthy secretary who was faithful to his duties, who understood thoroughly the work and needs of the board. These remarks were warmly endorsed by Mr. Morrison and also by President Clarke.

The election was by ballot and resulted in a unanimous election without any opposition

The temptation in Madame Cornet's case was her jewelry, as in that of Madame Saintin it was her money, in both instances the possessions being too openly displayed and too carelessly left lying about. There is a growing distrust now among elderly ladies who live alone respecting the employing of valets or coachmen, and especially the latter.
